MESSAGE FROM THE CHAIRMAN "I spent an hour or so on the phone last night to the police, concerned about the disappearance of Thomas Starr. He hasn't been seen at the top of the league for several weeks and some of us were growing concerned (Tom Kidd). They asked if he was expected to go anywhere, to which I had to be honest and say yes. So they said there is nothing they can do, but keep you eyes peeled in the lower half of the league". END OF MESSAGE.

Look at Joe Raspin go. The eternal pantomime clown who is mates with Charlish is actually having a decent season and could be in the equation come the end of season. 1 point off the weekly top score and moving up to second, what a Christmas Raspin could have. Being in the top 10 and hitting 30 points this week is a pretty poor showing. Ciaran – OK no one knows anything about him, so this could be normal – but Jed Begley.... wait, no that's expected. Mr 3rd place should surely do better. Smolly and Barrie can hold their heads up high at least, and they are rewarded moving up the table.

Luke C @ClearasilBoi ...

DESERT STORM BURIES WALKER

Liam Page confirms a visit to the finest audiologist in Dubai has cleared a lot of the sand that had blown into his ears out. The impact of this is sizeable as Liam follows up a close fought victory over Tom Starr with a victory over the current DUZZ champion Scott Walker. Liam's 6th victory of the season continues his climb off the foot of the table and level on points with Blackshaw, who is ominously lurking outside the relegation zone. Blackshaw is likely to replace Liam in the bottom 5 if results like losing to Charlish are anything to go by. A shocking 29-32 defeat saw many quarters of his own backroom staff calling for his immediate dismissal as this is further proof that he cannot handle the level of competition in Div1. Big things were expected of him since his arrival a few seasons ago, but he has done nothing to substantiate the hype and is expected to return back to the misty depths of Div2 and concentrate on the Zenith Data Systems Cup. Dan Western literally ran up against an immovable object this week as he brought his little troop of men to the Chairman's home and found him unbeatable. Significantly behind the entire game week, even a late Thursday evening rally was batted off like a cow flicking a fly with his tail. Udder rubbish from another manager out of his depth and out of ideas. Steve Lesley was seen strutting his stuff around Westfield in White City, celebrating adding his name to the growing list of managers enjoying giving that Alfie a proper beating. Steve was interviewed as he treated himself to a little Wagamama's by himself as he toasted his 39-33 victory and he said he was very happy. The plastering world's version of Palpatine versus Darth Vader met in a huge clash as the former plaster master Stocker took on his apprentice of old. The result, was a draw. Andy commented afterwards on Stocker's resemblance to Palpatine and Stocker replied saying Andy is a helmet. In other games, Gareth loses top spot in a defeat to Tom Kidd, Steve R easily beats the joker Jed and Sam Foreman beats Tom Starr with ease.

WILSON BEATEN BY HIMSELF

12 matches into the season, newbie Ben Wilson stands tall with a stunning 12/1 record, losing only to The Talisman in week 5. When no one can beat you, I guess when you are playing the average you mentally take a week off. Defeat by the average – which has beaten MBS, Freddie, Greg, JJ, Alex, Miller and Niinoi to date – is more a cry for challenge than a sign of depreciation. Or is it? The rare slip gave a rare opportunity to MBS and Collis, who could cut the lead to 6 points. It is a testament to the fortitude of the two that when given a chance such as this, they meekly keel over and get beaten by lesser managers. Very much lesser when you look at the records of Robins and Miller. Poor show but they remain in 2nd and 3rd. The evidence compiled by a secret DUZZ investigation into whether Nick Bellamy is actually a clown in human disguise goes beyond that required by law to show proof. In his post match interview, the clown Nick Bellamy sported a baseball cap to control his fluorescent pink frizzy hair and was lost for words at his defeat to Greg Cole. The reporter asked why he was looking so down, and the clown Nick Bellamy just said he was staring at his very large white and red shoes. Manager of the month Andrew Frangoullis continues his fine form as he defeats John in a low scoring affair. Now established as a contender for the promotion battle, the Talisman's eyes glinted with the energy of a man, out of shape, getting a taste of past glories through the victories against lesser men. John was that lesser man and the two swap places in the league. Barrie had a proper tantrum at the end of his match against JJ. Feet stamping, cap throwing, water bottle kicking “it’s not fair” level tantrum as he continues to struggle with the legacy of inexperience over the last few years. The second highest scorer in the league was defeated by a rare rare rare performance from bottom of the table JJ. Some say unlucky, others just chuckle to themselves as they read the match report from their daily perch on the shitter. Elsewhere Niinoi turns his form around with victory over a child and Ali Stock beats Tom K by a point.

CIARAN GOES KERR-PLUNK

We wondered if any man was capable, in a league of managers more suitable to potting plants in a greenhouse, of defeating Ciaran Sundstrem. In a leaked email to his friend Scott Walker, Ciaran was less than positive about the quality of managers in Div2 N and stated that this was not what he signed up, as he faced no challenge from any man. Only Shae gave him a challenge when she defeated him in GW2, but of course she is a woman. Then Aidan Kerr appeared. A misty figure on the horizon with one purpose, to ride into GW15 and become the first man to defeat the mythical man. Aidan's amazing plan was to be completely discreet, under the radar, so he approached the first 14 games with a deliberate plan to be mediocre, to lure his opponent into a false sense of security. And then when they came to the mighty battle, Aidan would hit Ciaran with a whopping 36 points and take his man down. A great story, well done Sir Aidan Kerr. Victory takes Aidan back up to 2nd and now only 8 points behind Ciaran. Another indication as to the quality of the league was 2nd place Chris Martin being defeated by Travis Rattle.... "oh no he wasn't"..... "oh yes he was"..... as the pantomime season continues. Nando and Stoo had a big clash of the eternal no where men, with Stoo over performing this season and going into their clash with the optimism of a man who doesn't know why things are going well. This time they didn't, and Nando takes the 3 points. Shae's fine performances saw her recognised with the November Manager of the Month, although her celebrations led to her missing the deadline and being beaten by the average. Smolly is a man on a mission. His inconsistent start to the season has now evened out and he is regularly producing good performances, as a 37-40 victory against veteran Neil Parker demonstrates. Elsewhere Loz feasts at Frankie's table, Yarrell performs surgery on Dr Key and Joe defeats Jodie.

Rules

The most significant rule is what happens when a knock-out fixture ends in a draw/equal points. This applies to:-

- FA Cup
- Champions League qualifiers and knock-out stages
- Last Man Standing for equal lowest scores
- Div2 Play Offs.
- The points league where a Prize position is equal.

The following criteria is used:-

1. The total points scored by ex-Bristol City players in each team for that (or the last) gameweek. The player must have played one (or more) league, FA Cup or League Cup fixtures for BCFC in the past. The totals are added and the highest total wins. If they are still equal.....
2. The last H2H this season. If a draw or they have not played.....
3. The score of the captains. If still equal.....
4. The vice captain. If still equal.....
5. The goalkeeper. If still equal.....
6. The first appearing defender, and so on.

25% of the entry fee supports the BCFC London Supporters Club with their running costs. To that end the WhatsApp group is for fun and “banter”. Keep it all in the spirit of the game.

The Chairman's decision is generally the final say in any areas of contention. If a decision is unpopular, a panel of 5 managers will be assigned to deliberate on the issue in hand. This will consist of Jed Begley (chairman of BCFC Supporters London), the top manager at the time in the points league, the bottom manager in points league, the highest weekly scorer for that week and the lowest. Where a manager is two of these, the second placed manager will be included. They can then discuss the issue and vote.

Have a great season everyone. Thank you for making this competition awesome.
